I agree with Governor Newsom when he says Republicans are desperate to win in this election. The LA Times has the story:

> California elections officials on Monday demanded Republican campaign officials stop using private ballot collection containers marked as “official” drop-boxes, saying that the do-it-yourself boxes are illegal under state law.
>
> A spokesman for the California Republican Party rejected the allegation, insisting the practice is allowed under a 2016 state law that allows a voter to designate any person to collect a completed ballot and return it to election officials, a polling place or vote center, or a secure vote-by-mail drop box.

While the Republicans are correct about the law, some of the drop boxes were labeled as official drop boxes for ballots. That is illegal under Cali law. For all the conservative talk about election tampering, Republicans seem to doing some of it themselves these days, and in a blue state to boot!
